September 2006 - For immediate release

Depositit Data Storage Links with F.A.S.T

Depositit computer backup software has teamed up with the Federation Against Software Theft (F.A.S.T) to provide their members with the most secure method of backing up and restoring computer data. F.A.S.T members will be able to use Depositit's software to run a daily back up which saves the critical computer files from their laptops, desktops or servers securely off-site. The backup software can be used by any business and saves all file types including emails, complicated databases, images and documents. In an emergency files can be restored instantly.

Depositit Sales Director, Anthony Ryb comments:

"F.A.S.T was the world's first anti-software piracy organisation working to protect the intellectual property rights of software publishers and is the only association in the world that represents both software publishers and end users. It is widely accepted that computers contain virtually every essential piece of data for an organisation and this data must be backed up and easily restored. Sadly these days events such as theft, fire, flood, or operator errors are all too frequent causes of catastrophic data loss and insurance cannot replace this vital element, with this in mind Depositit are proud to be working with F.A.S.T to provide their members with the ultimate disaster recovery solution.
